

Marsolais Aces #13 at GlenRiddle Man 'O War

Congratulations to Mike Marsolais the newest member of the Waggle.com Hole In One Club. On Saturday, June 16th Mr. Marsolais struck gold with his 6 iron on the 167 yard par 3. "It was a thing of beauty" said Mike. His playing partners hit the following shots; Mr. Drewer was just left of the green; Mr. Rose was on 20 feet right, and Mr. Nutter rolled past the hole to only 4 feet. "After those shots I knew I needed to hit it well" continued Marsolais. The shot was launched from an elevated tee into the wind, landed left of the hole and trickled in for his first HIO. "Although our shots gave Mike an indication of the wind direction, the topography of the green, and the proper club for the conditions it was still a nice shot" opined his partners. Witnesses say that Marsolais began to dance like Rocky and then a hug fest ensued. "We are thrilled and relieved for Mike, he's been playing a long time, he's starting to get up there and we were worried he might never get an ace. Luckily his heart held out during the celebration because none of us would've given him CPR!" said cohort and Carpenters fan P. Nutter. Be sure to tell us when your get your next ace at www.waggle.com/holeinone.asp

U.S. Open Winner Headlines Strong International Field Coming to DC

When Argentina's Angel Cabrera won the U.S. Open last week, he became not only the first Argentinean to accept the trophy, he also became the first to do it through a translator. Cabrera's win in our national championship showcases the strength of international golf pros. The inaugural AT&T National, hosted by Tiger Woods July 3-8 at Congressional Country Club, will continue in that vein. Cabrera and 2006 U.S. Open champion Geoff Ogilvy of Australia are among the latest elite players expected to play in the exclusive, 120-player field. Currently, an estimated 12 nations will be represented in the $6 million AT&T National, featuring a $1.08 million winner's check.

Among the many international names gearing up to play alongside Woods are Fiji's best player, Vijay Singh, recent Memorial Tournament champ K.J. Choi (South Korea), Woods' close friend Darren Clarke (Northern Ireland), 2003 Masters champion Mike Weir (Canada), Justin Rose (England), Daisuke and Shigeki Maruyama and Ryuji Imada (Japan), Jesper Parnevik, Daniel Chopra and Mathias Gronberg (Sweden), Pablo Martin (Spain) and Camilo Villegas (Colombia).

The AT&T National features almost a week's worth of festivities. Congressional will open to the public on Tuesday, July 3, with professional practice rounds, followed by the Earl Woods Memorial Pro-Am on Wednesday, July 4, and four rounds of tournament play from July 5-8. Tickets can be ordered by calling 1-800-594-TIXX or visiting the tournament website at www.attnational.org.

Baywood Greens Review

I had heard so many positive things about this golf course that I was anxious to play it. Baywood Greens, located north of Ocean City in Long Neck, Delaware did not disappoint. From the minute you pull into the facility you'll begin to appreciate this golf course. The large fountain, stately clubhouse and landscaping galore give you a preview of what you're in for when you play the course. Oh yea, the course itself is a gem! Needless to say, pristine conditions existed throughout and I believe that the old cliché "you got to see it to believe it" would fit here. The group I was with made the decision to play the "up" (green) tees which measured just under 6100 yards but I was pleasantly surprised that it still offered a challenge on most of the holes. For instance #6 is an over the swamp par three that measures 223 from the tips and 202 from the green tees. A forced carry and not much room to bail out will force you to hit that dreaded long iron to try to make a par. The back nine has water that comes into play on just about every hole. On #14, the player's assistant told us to save the trouble and simply drop a ball in the water and hit 3 from the island fairway. He was 75% right in our group too! This tricky hole requires a few minutes to figure out prior to hitting your tee shot. Make sure to check the board and figure out how far to hit your tee shot. Depending on which tees you play, the "island" approach will require a tee shot of anywhere from 180 to 250 yards which will leave you a short approach to the green over yet more water. Don't want to hit it that way? Then play the dogleg which will let you boom a big drive and leave you a mid iron to the green. We all played the "island approach" but as mentioned, my 3 playing partners were all hitting "3" on their approach shot! Final word of warning, take a look at the hole layout on #16 before you try to get to this par 5 in 2 as the water comes out across nearly 1/2 the fairway and is hidden from view. (Hint: miss right if you're gonna miss!) You'll be "closed" by the beauty of #18 as you'll drive to the island tee boxes and see all the flower boxes to and fro. Enough already – this course is nice and challenging! As mentioned, the conditions were superb. Make sure to notice the grain of the green when putting as it will influence the break of your putt and may add a shot to your score if you don't play it. Yet another challenge! Stop by for a beer and snack at the up-scale bar/grill room or take a gander at the view of the course from the outer deck. It's all good here at Baywood Greens. -Lefty

2007 Constellation Energy Senior Players Championship

Bobby Wadkins maybe a NASCAR redneck from Richmond but he loves practicing and playing golf as he mentioned in his press conference this past Monday at Media Day at Baltimore Country Club. Wadkins, the defending champion of the Senior Players Championship, was in town and had plenty of funny things to say. Originally from Richmond, VA he feels this event is right in his own back yard. Never winning on the PGA Tour Wadkins won his first Champions Tour event 10 days after turning 50 and becoming the youngest Champions Tour winner ever. Steve Davis from WBAL Radio asked Wadkins "What's up with the Miami Dolphins logo on your golf shirt?" Bobby laughed and said, they put my kids through college. Wadkins had a very down to earth sense of humor and confessed to being nervous when talking to a group of people of any kind. The Players Championship will take play October 1-7, 2007 on the East course at the Baltimore Country Club in Timonium, Maryland. The East course will play to a par 70 at 7,037 yards. Don't miss out on seeing some of the best players on the Champions Tour. This is a major so most of the great ones will be playing. Go to www.ceseniortournaments.com for tickets and full details on the event. - Rob Wilson

Until next time, hit them long and in the short grass. Boya!!!

Father's Day at Jefferson District Golf Course

I couldn't have imagined a better Father's Day (the first since my dad's death in November) than to return to one of the first courses I played nearly a half century ago. This time my youngest son was along for his first visit to this poster child municipal course. As we teed up on the first of the diminutive par fours, memories flooded back. The snakes that resided left of the first green, the ubiquitous power lines, and of course the practice putting green that resembles a turtle's back (Try keeping an approach on that baby when you have the touch of a young boy). This par 35 has changed some in the last 5 decades but all for the better. Conditions are adequate. The price is reasonable. Beginners abound on this feel good walkable nine holes. Newly added environmental areas seem to protect the house off the second fairway and add a buffer to errant tee shot crossfire more than to preserve some natural wonder some 200 yards from the beltway. This is an ego booster of a course that is almost an ageless wonder. At least it is for me since I saw a familiar smile of pride on my son's face as he parred the final hole, albeit a par four 236 yarder. P.S. Thanks Dad for showing me this great game!
